FIA Formula 2 season comes to early end for David Beckmann

- David Beckmann and Charouz Racing System set to go their separate ways
- German rookie had an excellent showing during the 2021 season
- David Beckmann: "Despite achieving two podiums, finding more sponsors to finance my racing has proved impossible. It's all most unfortunate"

By mutual agreement, 21-year-old David Beckmann and Czech outfit Charouz Racing System have decided not to continue working together in this year's FIA Formula 2. As a result, the season in the top junior formula racing class has come to an early end for Beckmann after just four race weekends.

The German driver was new to this year's championship held within the context of the Formula 1 World Championship, but by taking third place in the first race of the season in Bahrain, he quickly proved that he had adapted to the new challenges he faced. His best result of the year came next with second place on the demanding circuit in Baku, Azerbaijan's capital.

David Beckmann: "Unfortunately, my season in Formula 2 has come to an early end. Despite achieving two podiums, finding more sponsors to finance my racing has proved impossible. It's all most unfortunate, as it also marks the conclusion of my time with Charouz Racing System, which has been very constructive and most informative. I would like to thank everyone in the team for their commitment over the past few months. I now intend to continue to work hard on furthering my motor racing career next year."
